

Shock Collars Can't Be Justified

EXCUSE # ONE

"Shock collars don't hurt, they just tap or tingle."

Shock collar promoters equate the effects of a shock to a light tap or tingle, used simply to get an animal's attention. A task easily accomplished with your voice or a clicker without the use of pain. A rose by any other name smells as sweet and an electric shock by any other name hurts all the same. Countless YouTube videos demonstrate the intensity of the shocks these collars are capable of delivering, causing grown men to scream while ripping the collars from their necks. Regrettably, a shocked dog isn't able to rip the collar from their necks. Add the terror of not knowing where the pain is coming from, why it is happening and if it will happen again and this can only be described as animal abuse
