

Shock Collars Can't Be Justified

EXCUSE # TWO

"Shock collars produce quick results & are easy to use".

Yes, it's true. A simple push of a button, that even a child can execute and unfortunately often does, is capable of delivering a shock intense enough to cause an animal to freeze from the pain. So, why don't we use the same painful tactics on kids that don't listen? A jolt of electricity through a child's neck, and bingo, no more talking back, but be cautioned, the screams may be worse. A punch in the stomach can work just as quickly. It's chilling how persuasive violence can be when a victim is powerless to defend themselves and their deep distress and suffering is of no concern to the abuser. Yes, shock collars do work, if you are willing to ignore the repercussions. Guess what, so does patience, affection, praise and rewards.
